

We will ensure our pupils are not limited by their circumstances, but rather, through their study of English, are empowered to succeed in a challenging and competitive world.

Students will leave TOAN confident and capable readers, able to pursue and explore their interests and passions further through their own independent reading.

In our lessons pupils will discover the power and magic of literature: how it challenges, informs and inspires different perspectives, opening doors, not just to new viewpoints, but to new worlds.

By studying texts from our country's literary heritage we will ensure our pupils have the cultural capital necessary to move comfortably and confidently between different social settings.

Through their study of a wide range of experiences and viewpoints, we will support our students in becoming more empathetic and caring individuals, and in turn, help to build a more tolerant and inclusive future for all.

As writers and speakers, our pupils will leave equipped with the ability to adapt different registers for different purposes, adroitly changing their tone to match the audience. Our students will leave TOAN able to express their thoughts and feelings, whether through writing or speech, with confidence and clarity.

In our lessons students will know the power of language, the power of knowledge, and the awesome power of their own minds.
